About SOWN

SOWN is a community organisation working to restore the habitats of Enoggera, Ithaca and Fish Creeks in Brisbane's north and west.

SOWN is supported by Brisbane City Council (through its Catchment Coordinator and Habitat Brisbane Programs) and the local community.

Creeks in the catchment are over 23 kilometres in length and feed into Breakfast Creek.

The objectives of SOWN include:

- Rehabilitation of waterways to restore the ecological balance and fauna habitat
- Increased community awareness and understanding of creek life and its management
- Expanded community access to and amenities for waterways in the region.

SOWN online

Members and the community are encouraged to use our web site as the major source of information about SOWN and our activities www.saveourwaterwaysnow.com.au has information on weeding, what to plant and local wildlife as well as an events calendar and e-newsletter. We even have SOWN TV which features a growing number of five minute episodes on SOWN activities and issues.

What do members do?

A typical sequence of events for new members:

- Decide which stretch of the creek you want to restore
- Contact SOWN to find out which group covers that stretch of creek
- Join the local group
- Participate in working bees or work on your own
- Participate in training by Habitat Brisbane and your group leader (make sure you have appropriate tools, clothes, and safety equipment and have been briefed about safe work methods)
- Learn about weeds and how to control them
- Learn about useful native plants and how to encourage them
- If you clear weeds, mulch your site and plant with appropriate species. Even weeds are better than bare or disturbed ground
- Keep records of your work on the Habitat Brisbane form
- Maintain and enjoy your restored waterway
